GUY E. BRADLEY

Because of his interest and understanding of young Americans, the Class of 1941 dedicates this yearbook to Mr. Guy E. Bradley.

YOUNG AMERICA SPEAKS

America has given me freedom, in every sense of the word; it has given me a chance to succeed in this world--an opportunity denied to so many children in other countries; it has provided me with a bulwark against all aggression. The question now arises as to what I, just a young student, can do to repay the people who fostered or are fostering the spirit that is America. To do this is to fulfill my debt to America.

It is my duty to make America a unified country, which, in turn, means a strong country. To accomplish this, I must prepare myself to meet all phases of life. I should learn to understand and interpret all facts justly, so when I am eligible to vote and participate in public affairs, I can do it sanely. I ought to curb prejudices and discriminations against those disagreeing with me on religious or political viewpoints. To remain cool and unemotional in face of opinions differing from mine is my obligation. Degrading or slanderous remarks against my opponents would serve to hurt the spirit of America.

Not only am I obliged to be mentally fit, but I should build up my physical strength in order that I shall not be a detriment to the cause of Americanism. I owe America my wholehearted cooperation with its progress forward.

The privileges promised me by the Bill of Rights are mine to retain and to guard. I owe it to America to preserve the freedom of assembly, the freedom of press, the freedom of religion, and the freedom of speech, so that I need never be ashamed of the tears that well in my eyes when I hear the Star Spangled Banner, it is the symbol of America and its ideals--my heritage.

ADA F. R. SNYDER

We, the Class of '41, wish to express our grateful appreciation to our adviser, Miss Snyder, for her interest and cooperation in all of our endeavors during our four years at Lancaster High School.

STOP AND CONSIDER

The National Tuberculosis Association and the Columbia Scholastic Press Associated awarded a certificate of honor to the Maroon Oracle for its contribution to a better understanding of tuberculosis. This honor came to our school as the result of an editorial written by a senior, Betty Beeman. "Stop and Consider" won second prize in the regional contest conducted for students of the surrounding communities.

This editorial asked such pertinent questions as, "What do you know about tuberculosis? Would you know how to find out whether you have it? Is tuberculosis hereditary? What good is the tuberculosis test?"

In answering these questions, the author discussed the discovery of the tuberculosis germ by Robert Koch in 1882, the symptoms, and the means of spreading the disease. The editorial continues with a discussion of methods to prevent the spread of the disease, as follows:

"The Tuberculin Test should be taken once a year. You ask, 'What is this test?' A special fluid called tuberculin is injected into the forearm. The test-spot will become red and slightly swollen if the person has ever been with tuberculosis. Because the test does nothing to make the person immune, but shows whether there are any tuberculin germs in his body, he should have the test yearly. After a first infection of tuberculosis, a certain immunity is established.

"Does poverty play a part in the spreading of tuberculosis? Yes, it definitely does. A lack of sunshine and fresh air, over-crowding, improper foods, and careless habits, such as half washing dishes, all are results of poverty that make it easy for tuberculosis to develop. Also the effect of poverty on the family morale is important. So many people become so discouraged that they 'just don't care' and a slovenly home develops.

"It is very important that the cases of tuberculosis be found, because a person with the disease is a germ spreader. The social worker and the nurse, the doctor and the health authorities have many opportunities of finding hidden cases. The school teacher can exert great influence on the child and his parents, and if she detects certain symptoms connected with tuberculosis, she can do a great deal in fighting the disease.

"Our slogan should be 'On with the Fight!' Tuberculosis causes more deaths than any other disease among people from fifteen to forty-five. We should exert our every power to control tuberculosis. Only then will the number of cases of it decrease."

THE TRAIL OF '41

When the covered wagons of '41 set out for that great gold rush graduation back in '37, 125 bold tenderfoots elected Howard Simme as head of the wagon train and Dexter Parsons as his right hand man. June Lindner was selected to keep the log; James Eberhardt to care for our money; and Miss Snyder was made our chief scout.

Taking the blue from the skies and the gold from the sunset, we formed our colors. In remembrance of our gardens in the homes we left, we selected the red rose as our class flower.

We helped the party of '38 to publish the new yearbook by giving them some of the proceeds of the sale of our handicraft, red and black Scottie doorstops and bookends. Thank you, Mr. Brock, for helping us. We started a small annual called The Junior High School Journal. Having spent a year on the trail, we felt capable of conducting part of our Junior High School graduation program, Our School, in which various classes participated.

After this strenuous year, we elected for our captain Harold Landahl; his assistant, Howard Simme; keeper of the log, Ruth Albrecht; and treasurer, Betty Bock.

We helped the wagon train financially by selling polishing cloths. We were so anxious to reach our goal that we didn't take time for a celebration (A Soph Hop), but we had a big picnic in a place called Como Park. We gained much experience this year.

For the next year we thought that our splendid leaders of the past year needed a little rest, so we placed Dexter Parsons in the position of responsibility as captain of the wagon train; Betty Bock as his helper; Virginia Stutzman as logkeeper; and Elman Steinman, treasurer.

As we advanced to a place in the trail where we could enjoy ourselves, we had several class dances. Near the end of the year when we had almost reached the three quarter mark, we took time out for the Junior Stardust Prom. It was held under a starlit ceiling, Ruth Albrecht was chairman of the decorating committee. Elman Steinman and Virginia Stutzman were crowned king and queen for the night. This was our last event of the year before we came to the great desert, examinations.

Before our last year on the trail began, we selected these officers: Gerald Setter, head of the wagon train; Betty

Before our last year on the trail began, we selected these officers: Gerald Setter, head of the wagon train; Betty Bock, his assistant; logkeeper, Marilyn Goebel; and treasurer, Inger Solum. Other duties calling Gerald from the wagon trail; he retired, but he later caught up with the party. Betty Bock was made head of the train and Carlton DuBois her assistant.

We stopped and put on a very successful play, What a Life. The amount earned was to go for the yearbook. After this a class dance was held. Plans are under way for the Senior Ball just before we reach the end of the trail.

And so with our duties done, our honors won, leaving our sincere gratitude to the faculty members, the hardened pioneers reach the goal of graduation--a goal that will mold our lives into better citizens.

CLASS OF 1944

We organized a Junior High State this year so we did not have the usual class officers. Each class room city elected its own mayor and other officers. The seventh, eighth and ninth grades then formed counties, each with a sheriff and his staff. Finally the three grades combined in electing State officials, particularly from the ninth grade. The purpose of this experiment was to give the students an understanding of local government organization and the means by which officials are elected in the United States of America.

MAROON ORACLE STAFF

The Maroon Oracle has had a successful year. The staff was organized soon after the beginning of the 1940-41 term. At first, the paper was managed by the advisers: Miss Huber, Mr. Bigelow, Mr. Brown, and Mr. Patterson; then P. Burdick was chosen editor.

In December several members of the staff entered a contest sponsored by the Buffalo Tuberculosis Association. B. Beeman won second prize in the regional contest for her editorial Stop and Consider.

This year many desired to become members of the Club, but only sixty were selected. Immediately we settled down with only one purpose in mind--this was to return from Atlantic City with the highest honors possible for our Club and school.

Brunck and L. Grambo shared the honors as Henry Aldrich while O. MacArthur and V. Stutzman served as school secretary on separate nights. The part of Henry's girl, Barbara, was taken by L. Wiggins. F. Dude made a stern school principal and the supporting cast cooperated beautifully in the numerous character parts. Under the superb direction of Mr. Bigelow and his indispensable cigar, the play was a splendid success.

CHEER LEADERS

This year a new system of selecting cheerleaders was inaugurated. Any Freshmen interested in cheerleading train for about a month and then the three or four showing most promise are retained as a Junior Squad which cheers in Junior High School assemblies and for the second basketball team. When they become Sophomores, they automatically graduate into the Varsity Squad. This system provides for enough cheerleaders in case one or more drop out for various reasons.

FEATURES

SR. BOYS' HOME ECONOMICS CLASS

What has been the attraction in the cooking room, the fifth period?

In anticipation of K. P. service in the future, the boys have studied home economics under the direction of Miss Florence E. Putnam. A Big Event was the spaghetti supper served by the boys with T. Farruggio as chief cook. The guests were Miss Kling, Miss Bates, Miss Snyder, and Miss Putnam. For the first time in school history the boys helped prepare the food for the Athletic Banquet. May the class continue at L. H. S.
